Born in Caracas, Venezuela, daughter of an Italian citizen, Raffaella Corcione Sandoval is a contemporary artist who has received multiple awards and whose works are held in many important private collections in Italy, London, New York, Caracas, Miami, Mumbai, San Francisco, and Athens. She makes use of multiple forms of expression, from painting to photography, from video to performance, combining and transforming simple materials into unexpected compositions, using new and original techniques. Art, science, philosophy and technology know no borders for this artist whose works incorporate them all in an aesthetical synthesis of human knowledge. Ms Sandoval has exhibited in Switzerland, the USA, Germany, China, Portugal, Spain and India, as well as in several Italian cities. Her works have been shown in galleries and museums including the Royal Palace of Caserta, the Maschio Angioino castle in Naples, and the Museum of Villa Torlonia, Rome. One of Italy's leading Art critic, Vittorio Sgarbi, writes that her works lead us "to the borders of a spirituality as longed for as it is elusive, hidden behind symbolisms that fluctuate in their manifestation through figuration, between the esoteric and the messianic."

Dirty money - Re:common 2015-06-10

Dirty Money tells the story of Dotun Oloko, a whistleblower who tries to expose what he suspected was the involvement of the British government and European institutions in the laundering of millions of dollars of money stolen from Nigera by James Ibori, the corrupt former governor of one of the country's oil rich states. Suspecting colossal fraud and corruption, Oloko reports the facts to the UK Department for International development and the European Investment Bank - only to find his family placed under covert surveillance. In the end, Ibori will be sentenced by a London court for fraud and money laundering. But the Western institutions that Oloko alleged were complicit are still in business.

Little Boy - Lawrence Ferlinghetti 2020-04-15
From the famed publisher and poet, author of the million-copy-selling collection A Coney Island of the Mind, his literary last will and testament -- part autobiography, part summing up, part Beat-inflected torrent of language and feeling, and all magical. "A volcanic explosion of personal memories, political rants, social commentary, environmental jeremiads and cultural analysis all tangled together in one breathless sentence that would make James Joyce proud. . ." —Ron Charles, The Washington Post In this unapologetically unclassifiable work Lawrence Ferlinghetti lets loose an exhilarating rush of language to craft what might be termed a closing statement about his highly significant and productive 99 years on this planet. The "Little Boy" of the title is Ferlinghetti himself as a child, shuffled from his overburdened mother to his French aunt to foster childhood with a rich Bronxville family. Service in World War Two (including the D-Day landing), graduate work, and a scholar gypsy's vagabond life in Paris followed. These biographical reminiscences are interweaved with Allen Ginsberg-esque high energy bursts of raw emotion, rumination, reflection, reminiscence and prognostication on what we may face as a species on Planet Earth in the future. Little Boy is a magical font of literary lore with allusions galore, a final repository of hard-earned and durable wisdom, a compositional high wire act without a net (or all that much punctuation) and just a gas and an inspiration to read.
